THE ZOOLOGICAL MUSEUM OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ATHENS
3. THE COLLECTION OF COLEOPTERA FROM GREECE
PART I

By A. LEGAKIS

The Zoological Museum of the University of Athens is the oldest and richest natural history museum in Greece. Established in 1837, it contains collections of animals from Greece as well as from other countries (LEGAKIS 1984). The biggest part of its entomological collection consists of Coleoptera, approximately 30.000 specimens most of which come from Greece. They are mainly the collections of T. Kruper who was curator of the Museum from 1872 up to 1917, and of T. Heldreich who was curator from 1958 to 1872. In addition, the collection contains donations of coleopterological material by scholars such as von Oertzen and Rehberg.

Almost all the specimens have been collected during the last century, from 1857 up to 1913. Since then, no additions have been made because after the death of T. Kruper, no entomologist was employed by the Museum. As the naturalist trend died out in the beginning of the 20th century and was replaced by experimental biology, entomology in Greece became the subject of applied biologists and agronomists only. It is characteristic that up to the seventies, almost no scientific article on non-applied entomology had been written by greek researchers (LEGAKIS 1983).

The specimens come from central and southern Greece and the Aegean islands. This is because up to the beginning of the 20th century, Epirus, Macedonia, Thrace, Crete and the Dodecanese had not yet become parts of Greece.

The largest part of the Coleoptera specimens from Greece is unidentified containing only information on locality, date of collection and collectors' name. Most of them are in good condition and intact. A large part of the collection of Kruper was donated by him to the Museum of Bosnia and Herzegovina in Sarajevo where it was identified by V. Apfelbeck and published in his work on Balkan Carabidae (APFELBECK 1904). Other parts of his personal collection were given to various other european institutions. The rest were most probably identified by Kruper as no mention of any determiner is made.

In order to present an impression of the richness of the collection, the identified species were revised according to the recent literature and the Coleopterorum Catalogus (SCHENKLING 1910-1938) and presented here in the form of a list. It is hoped that the publication of this list will incite specialists who are interested in the Coleoptera of Greece to assist in the identification of the specimens of the collection. Many of these species were collected in locations where they do not exist any more. Therefore, it is interesting to compare past and present distributions.

The first part contains 484 species from the following 25 families:

Cicindelidae, Carabidae, Rhysodidae, Haliplidae, Dytiscidae, Gyrinidae, Hydrophilidae, Hydraenidae, Histeridae, Catopidae, Silphidae, Scydmaenidae, Staphylinidae, Scarabaeidae, Lucanidae, Helodidae, Dryopidae, Buprestidae, Elateridae, Eucnemidae, Lycidae, Lampyridae, Cantharidae, Dermestidae and Thorictidae.
